THE MAGESTIC ASH TREES: A NATURAL TREASURE IS THREATENED

By Doug Diehl, EOSC

Ashes are important and common trees in Lebanon Township. They provide food, cover and nesting places for a variety of wildlife and the wood has commercial value. As we enter spring, if we can identify these trees, we will be able to look for evidence of a potentially destructive enemy...and help stop it!

The Emerald Ash Borer, also known as EAB, is an invasive beetle from Asia. This ½” long metallic-green pest was first discovered in Michigan in 2002, and as with many invasive species, probably migrated with shipping materials. Because ash wood is transported for lumber and firewood, the beetle was able to move quickly over long distances. Once the beetle attacks a tree, it usually destroys it within three to five years. In our state, four locations of EAB have recently been confirmed, and we are surrounded by states with much more serious established problems, so it is only a matter of time before we detect EAB here.

We can help protect our forest-rich township by learning to identify healthy ash trees, as well as the symptom of EAB infestation. The beetles attack the crown of the tree first; if you see yellowing bark or new, unusual woodpecker activity in the top section of an ash tree, this may be a sign of EAB infestation. Report the damage to the NJ State Department of Agriculture at (609) 406-6939 right away so the tree can be treated. Treatment products are available at local retail establishments and state-certified pesticide applicators can treat for EAB. To help prevent spread of the beetle, do not transport firewood away from its source. Use locally-sourced firewood when burning it at home and when travelling, burn firewood where you buy it.

How to Identify Ash Trees

Ashes have opposite branching and compound leaves with 5-11 leaflets. The bark of older trees has deep diamond shaped furrows but the bark of young trees can be smooth and gray.

Compound Leaves

For more information on EAB visit:
www.nj.gov/agriculture/divisions/pi/prog/emeraldashborer.html.

The EAB is not the only challenge facing our local forest and woodland. The Gypsy Moth, commonly recognized in the larva stage as the caterpillar covered with spiky hair and rows of blue and red warts, is one of the most notorious pests of hardwood trees in the Eastern United States. Since 1980, the gypsy moth has defoliated close to a million forested acres each year.

Gypsy moth larvae prefer hardwoods, but may feed on several hundred different species of trees and shrubs. In the East, it prefers oaks, apple, sweetgum, speckled alder, basswood, gray and white birch, poplar, and willow, but may also target cottonwood, hemlock, southern white cedar, and native pines and spruces.

Homeowners can consider one or more tactics to help reduce gypsy moth infestation on their property:

- Remove objects around the outside of the home that provide shelter for gypsy moth larvae and pupae, such as flaps of bark, dead tree branches, dead trees, boxes, cans, or old tires.
- Destroy egg masses found on outbuildings, on fencing, and in woodpiles. Egg masses can also be destroyed by painting them with commercially available products, such as liquid detergents.
- Place burlap wraps around trees to serve as a shade trap for older larvae when they seek out protected resting places during the day. The larvae can be manually collected and destroyed.
- Use barrier bands, such as double-sided sticky tapes, or sticky material such as Tanglefoot, petroleum jelly, or grease, to prevent larvae from crawling up the trunks of susceptible trees.

Several useful links for further information on the Gypsy Moth and what homeowners can do to safely suppress the spread of this pest are available at the U.S. and N.J. Departments of Agriculture:

Local Food: Don't Buy From Strangers, Buy From Neighbors!

By Maria Naccarato, LT Green Team Volunteer

Did you know Lebanon Township is home to more than a dozen farm stands? These stands include seasonal fruits and vegetables, herbs, eggs, honey and more. There are many reasons to support locally grown food throughout our community.

1. Fruits and vegetables produced locally are fresher and taste better than those shipped from long distances. Produce found at a local farm stand was probably picked within the last day or two, therefore having a better flavor. Produce shipped to grocery stores was grown to withstand long distance travel and a longer shelf life, not necessarily for taste.

2. Buying local helps safeguard your health. Knowing where your food comes from and how it was grown is a wonderful benefit of buying from a local farmer you trust.

3. Buying from a local farmer not only benefits the farmer financially but the community as well. The middleman is cut out so the farmer receives a higher profit. The farmer then circulates his profits locally, thus benefiting the entire community.

4. Buying local helps our environment. It minimizes packing material and cuts down on emissions because the produce doesn't have to travel very far.

5. Local food benefits the environment and wildlife. Well-managed farms provide ecosystems; they protect water sources, conserve fertile soil and remove carbon dioxide from the atmosphere. The farm environment is a patchwork of fields, meadows, ponds, and buildings that provide habitat for wildlife in our community.

Be sure to stop by and meet your local farmers this Spring! Visit our community Green Map at www.opengreenmap.org/greenmap/lebanon-township-nj to locate farm stands near you. If you have questions or for more information, contact the Lebanon Township Green Team at LTGreenTeam@gmail.com.

Solutions to Stormwater Pollution

Easy Things You Can Do Every Day To Protect Our Water

A Guide to Healthy Habits for Cleaner Water

Pollution on streets, parking lots and lawns is washed by rain into storm drains, then directly to our drinking water supplies and the ocean and lakes our children play in. Fertilizer, oil, pesticides, detergents, pet waste, grass clippings: You name it and it ends up in our water.

Stormwater pollution is one of New Jersey's greatest threats to clean and plentiful water, and that's why we're all doing something about it.

By sharing the responsibility and making small, easy changes in our daily lives, we can keep common pollutants out of stormwater. It all adds up to cleaner water, and it saves the high cost of cleaning up once it's dirty.

As part of New Jersey's initiative to keep our water clean and plentiful and to meet federal requirements, many municipalities and other public agencies including colleges and military bases must adopt ordinances or other rules prohibiting various activities that contribute to stormwater pollution. Breaking these rules can result in fines or other penalties.

As a resident, business, or other member of the New Jersey community, it is important to know these easy things you can do every day to protect our water.

Limit your use of fertilizers and pesticides

- Do a soil test to see if you need a fertilizer.
- Do not apply fertilizers if heavy rain is predicted.
- Look into alternatives for pesticides.
- Maintain a small lawn and keep the rest of your property or yard in a natural state with trees and other native vegetation that requires little or no fertilizer.
- If you use fertilizers and pesticides, follow the instructions on the label on how to correctly apply it.

Make sure you properly store or discard any unused portions.

Properly use and dispose of hazardous products

- Hazardous products include some household or commercial cleaning products, lawn and garden care products, motor oil, antifreeze, and paints.
- Do not pour any hazardous products down a storm drain because storm drains are usually connected to local waterbodies and the water is not treated.

- If you have hazardous products in your home or workplace, make sure you store or dispose of them properly. Read the label for guidance.
- Use natural or less toxic alternatives when possible.
- Recycle used motor oil.
- Contact your municipality, county or facility management office for the locations of hazardous-waste disposal facilities.

Keep pollution out of storm drains

- Municipalities and many other public agencies are required to mark certain storm drain inlets with messages reminding people that storm drains are connected to local waterbodies.

- Do not let sewage or other wastes flow into a stormwater system.

Clean up after your pet

- Many municipalities and public agencies must enact and enforce local pet-waste rules.
- An example is requiring pet owners or their keepers to pick up and properly dispose of pet waste dropped on public or other people's property.
- Make sure you know your town's or agency's requirements and comply with them. It's the law. And remember to:

- Use newspaper, bags or pooper-scoopers to pick up wastes.
- Dispose of the wrapped pet waste in the trash or unwrapped in a toilet.
- Never discard pet waste in a storm drain.

Don't litter

- Place litter in trash receptacles.
- Recycle. Recycle. Recycle.
- Participate in community cleanups.

Dispose of yard waste properly

- Keep leaves and grass out of storm drains.
- If your municipality or agency has yard waste collection rules, follow them.
- Use leaves and grass clippings as a resource for compost.
- Use a mulching mower that recycles grass clippings into the lawn.

SLAVERY IN HUNTERDON COUNTY, NEW JERSEY

By Nina Savoia, Historian; Excerpts from slavenorth.com and nj.gov

African slavery is so much the outstanding feature of the South, that people often forget there had been slaves in all the colonies. Slaves were auctioned openly in the Market House of Philadelphia; in the shadow of Congregational churches in Rhode Island; in Boston taverns and warehouses; and weekly, sometimes daily, in Merchant's Coffee House of New York. Such Northern heroes of the American Revolution as John Hancock and Benjamin Franklin bought, sold, and owned black people. William Henry Seward, Lincoln's anti-slavery Secretary of State during the Civil War, born in 1801, grew up in Orange County, New York, in a slave-owning family and amid neighbors who owned slaves if they could afford them. The family of Abraham Lincoln himself, when they lived in Pennsylvania in colonial times, owned slaves.

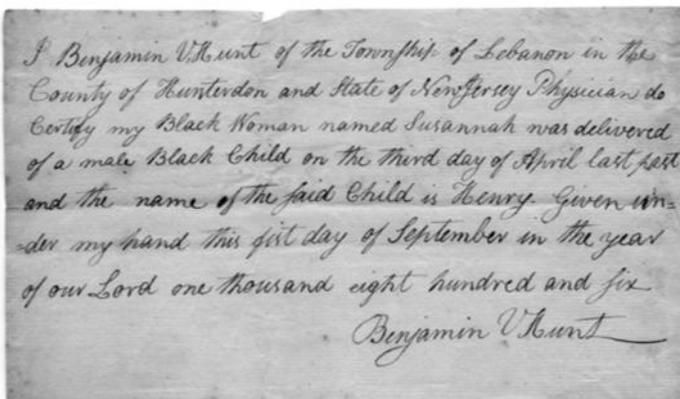

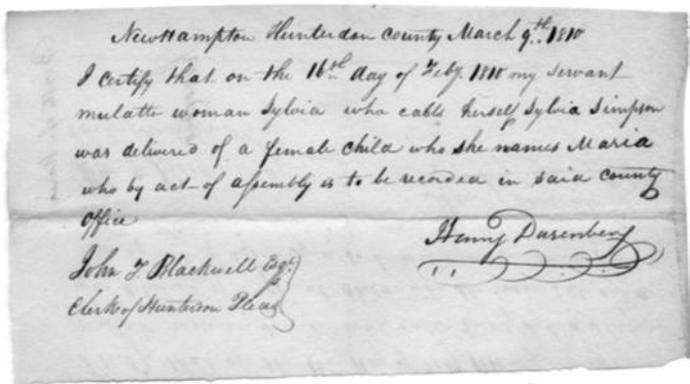

Slavery in the North never approached the numbers of the South. It was, numerically, a drop in the bucket compared to the South. But the South, comparatively, was itself a drop in the bucket of New World slavery. Some 500,000 slaves were brought to the United States (or the colonies) in the history of the slave trade, which is a mere fraction of the estimated 10 million Africans forced to the Americas during that period.

As can be seen in this table, New Jersey had an impressive slave population from the early 1600s to mid-1800s. On February 15, 1804, an Act for the Gradual Abolition of Slavery was passed by the New Jersey Legislature (P.L. 1804, chap. CIV, p. 251).

The law pronounced every child born to a slave mother after July 4, 1804 "free" at birth, but bound as a servant to the owner of the mother until the age of twenty-five for males and twenty-one for females. Any person entitled by the law to such bound service was required to file with the county clerk, within nine months of the birth of the child, a written certificate containing the name of the slave owner and the name, age and sex of the child. The clerk in turn was directed to record the information in a special book for this purpose. The penalty for neglecting to deliver such a certificate was $5 plus an additional $1 for each month of delinquency. The law also allowed for the abandonment of such children by the owners of their mothers at the age of one year. In this case, the child would become a ward of the local overseers of the poor; the slave owner was required to file a notification of abandonment with the county clerk.

Included in the inventory are original (usually signed) birth certificates submitted to the Hunterdon County Clerk during the period 1804-1835. While the 1804 law did not require that the mother's name be included on the certificate, it almost always was. The father's name was included only in a few cases. The certificates were filed by the slave owners. Here are a few actual copies of slave owners' record of slave births from Lebanon Township and New Hampton. These records are the direct result of the Gradual Abolition of Slavery act. The list of slave owners and slave names is available at www.nj.gov.

Help The Fresh Air Fund Make a Difference in the Life of a Child this Summer

The Fresh Air Fund needs your help next summer to give more inner-city children the opportunity of new experiences and lasting friendships in Hunterdon County. Since 1877, The Fresh Air Fund has provided free summer experiences for more than 1.8 million New York City children. Sign up to become a volunteer host and discover what many families in the area have already learned – a Fresh Air summer is one that makes a difference.

On first time visits to host families, Fresh Air children stay for one to two weeks. The children are six to twelve years old. They experience simple pleasures like running barefoot through the grass or gazing at star-filled skies.

For more information, please contact Susan Prisco at (908) 418-7267 or by email at susmarpri@embarqmail.com, or Jody Berkowitz at (908) 803-2902 or by email at jodyberkowitz@gmail.com, or visit www.freshair.org.

United Way's Free Tax Prep Service Helps You Keep More of Your Hard-Earned Cash

United Way of Hunterdon County (UWHC) is once again offering free tax preparation services to individuals and families through its IRS-certified Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program. Building on past success, United Way is now partnering with several local businesses and organizations in the community to extend the reach of the program. As a result this year's program has expanded and now offers free tax prep services at a number of locations throughout the county.

The United Way tax program is completely free of charge – no hidden fees – and refunds can even be e-filed with the IRS in order to receive a rapid refund without any fees. Appointments are necessary but scheduling one is easy. For a complete list of sites and to schedule an appointment, call 2-1-1 or (877) 652-1148, or visit uwhunterdon.org.

UWHC's VITA program has no income limit, but there is a complexity limit. Common complexities that preparers are unable to assist with include rental income and businesses with inventory. Call if you have questions about your return.

Spanish-speaking preparers also are available upon request. If you prefer to do your taxes on your own, FREE online tax preparation is once again available. Go to myfreetaxes.com/uwhunterdon and you will have access to assistance through a helpline provided by myfreetaxes.com in filing your return. A nominal fee may apply for household incomes of more than $58,000. This income limit is only associated with myfreetaxes.com.

This IRS-certified service is available thanks to a unique partnership of United Way of Hunterdon County and the IRS. The goals of this program are to provide savings on tax preparation fees as well as assist individuals and families in the claiming of tax credits such as the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) and the Child Tax Credit (CTC), and to encourage putting some of your tax refunds into savings accounts. By claiming these credits and splitting refunds, individuals and families have more money to pay bills, pay down debt and achieve or maintain financial stability. Last year, more than $1.25 million in refunds benefited local families and the local economy!

United Way is working to advance the common good by focusing on income, health and education. These are the building blocks for a good life - a quality education that leads to a stable job, enough income to support a family through retirement, and good health. Change is happening! To become part of the change, visit www.uwhunterdon.org, LIKE United Way of Hunterdon County on Facebook or call (908) 782-3414.

St. John Neumann's "Project Earth" Volunteer Garden Yields Crops for Charity

Last year a record crop of fresh, organically-grown produce was donated to charity, thanks to the Project Earth Garden, a community gardening initiative nourished by volunteers from The Catholic Community of St. John Neumann in Califon, NJ and other local residents.

Over the years the garden has produced thousands of pounds of vegetables that have been donated to various soup kitchens. Last year's crop of vegetables included beans, carrots, purple potatoes, butternut squash, eggplant, tomatoes, zucchini, and peas. The prolific amount of crops from the 5000 square-foot garden enabled St. John's Social Ministry volunteers to make bi-weekly trips to Elijah's Promise (www.elijahspromise.org) in New Brunswick. Elijah's Promise is a "fresh food" soup kitchen which strives to serve as much as they can from fresh, whole foods with the goal of helping people eat healthy to be healthy. They even have a culinary school that trains people to work in the food industry and access to fresh food gives the students the opportunity to work with foods normally used in restaurants. In addition, some of the crop was donated to SHIP's (Samaritan Homeless Interim Program) Galley Soup Kitchen (www.ship908.com) in Somerville in casseroles that St. John's parishioners made for the soup kitchen monthly.

Spring is coming! Come join us in the garden to share fellowship while helping feed people. Contact the parish office by email at socialministry@ccsjn.org or call (908) 832-2513.
