THE HERSCHELL-SPILLMAN CAROUSEL AT BUTLER AMUSEMENT PARK, LEBANON TOWNSHIP

Excerpts from the Philadelphia Inquirer Newspaper, August 6, 1992

Nina Savoia, Historian

In 1989, Sam and Elaine Willard purchased the original Herschell-Spillman carousel for a mere $1,000 at a New Jersey auction for the Carousel Village and the Shops at Indian Walk in Wrightstown, PA. The carousel had been built in the 1890s in North Tonawanda, NY, where the famous carousel-maker was located.

Many of the country's antique wooden carousels have been lost to fires, were destroyed through neglect, or diced and sliced and put on the auction block. The original Herschell-Spillman was quite a find, except for one drawback ... all of the horses were gone!

The carousel was originally designed to be used at county fairs and could be broken up and reassembled quickly. In 1927, the carousel became a more permanent fixture when it was moved to Butler Park, Lebanon Township, Hunterdon County, NJ. It was used there in one form or another until the 1950s. According to Sam Willard, at some point, all of the 36 horses were removed and replaced with kiddie rides. It also suffered some damage when a tree toppled onto it.

"Some of the changes made on the carousel during that time actually helped preserve it", Willard said. "A fabricated top was used during the years at Butler Park. That's what saved it. An electric motor was installed in 1926 when the carousel became permanent."

The Willards embarked on a two-year mission to find original Herschell-Spillman horses for their new carousel. They traveled around the country to auctions and conventions, learning firsthand about the cost and complexity of the carousel world.

"We purchased about 10 horses, but they were very expensive and very hard to find," Willard said. "We reached a point where we contacted John Sakos, a master woodcarver from New Jersey. He made us 12 horses in the Herschell-Spillman style."

Willard also made sure the new horses were carved in an American Indian style, feathers replacing the jeweled saddles and reins. Names of local tribes are inscribed on panels of the carousel's green and pink canopy top. Carved Indian heads surround the carnival-style ticket booth. Signs displaying arrowheads and bits of local lore are spotted in the plaza surrounding the carousel.

"Each station gives a little information to the children," he said. "They get a little feel for their heritage."

Willard, who owns part of a family forestry business in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, designed the renovation to blend with his old-fashioned Indian Walk Country Shops located adjacent to the carousel.

The carousel opened early summer in 1992 with 36 new and renovated horses, and two chariots. Willard said he will eventually replace the antique horses with replicas. Despite their beauty and value, Willard said there are more important reasons to keep the originals off the carousel.

"You can't go up to a little kid and say, 'Don't put your feet on the saddle,'" he said.

Today the Carousel can be visited at Carousel Village and the Shops at Indian Walk, 591 Durham Road (Route 413), Wrightstown, PA, 18940.

HUNTERDON COUNTY 300 YEARS Tercentennial Celebration

Please access www.hunterdon300th.org for all the programs and events happening this year to celebrate Hunterdon County's Tercentennial. There are daily events and programs - something for everyone. The Lebanon Township Museum at New Hampton, as well as all the museums in Hunterdon County, will be open for Museum Days on July 13 and July 20. Please visit the many museums in Hunterdon County which will be open for your enjoyment.

Old Swack Church

Thanks to the work of a group of dedicated volunteers, much progress has been made in cleaning up the grounds of the Old Swack Church on Anthony Road. Many of the gravestones have been repaired and trees, weeds and debris have been removed from the site. As part of the Tercentennial Celebration, a tour of the grounds and cemetery was led by John O'Brien of the Association of Gravestone Studies on May 3.

A gravestone with the inscription: Edef M, daughter of Peter and Genety Castner, Died April 1 1851, Aged 1 year & 2 Months, was removed from the Swackhammer Cemetery and found on Pleasant Grove Road in a gutter/stone row back in the 1970s. If anyone has any information regarding this stone or any other missing stones, please contact the Lebanon Township Historians at (908) 537-6464. It would be wonderful to have the stones returned to their original location.

Story Time in the Park

The Lebanon Township Historians will be holding Story Time in the Park again this summer. Last year, we had a great time sitting around picnic tables sharing stories with each other about things that have happened in the township.

We learned about the airstrip on the Sliker property, the Changewater murders, Bunnvale School, the WWII plane lookout located at what is today Woodglen School, the Mount Lebanon Grange, and so much more. We heard a lot of interesting stories about our township.

Come share your stories this summer at Memorial Park from 3:00 to 5:00 pm on the following Sundays: June 29, July 27, and August 24.

Come tell us about things that happened at school or during the war, township heroes, how you spent your summers, the history of your house, how you survived the different storms that have hit our township, or anything else you would like to share about Lebanon Township. We want to preserve these stories for the next generation.

If you have any questions, please contact Joan at the Museum at (908) 537-6464, call our chairperson, Victor Hoffman, at (908) 638-5849, or friend us on Facebook at Friends of the Lebanon Township Museum.

INVASIVE SPECIES: AUTUMN OLIVE

Doug Diehl, EOSC Member

We have learned that invasive species do not integrate well in our ecosystems. Invasive plant species can grow and spread quickly without much competition from native plants, often resulting in a reduction of the quality and diversity of the local ecosystem. In the last newsletter, I described how Japanese stiltgrass can give off thousands of seeds that may lay dormant for years before germination. You may even be surprised to find it appear in your yard this spring when it had not been there before. The key to controlling invasives is the early removal of young growth.

SPRING IDENTIFICATION: Autumn Olive (Elaeagnus umbellata) begins as a seedling and grows to a shrub. As years pass, it may develop into a small tree 20 to 30 feet high. It has the ability to flower and develop fruit as a small plant (two to three feet high) after only five years of growth. In mid-spring, its flowers are pale yellow to white in color, tubular in shape and very fragrant! Small seedlings can grow rapidly, especially in open areas such as fields and yards.

FALL IDENTIFICATION: The fruit, called a drupe, contains one seed per fruit much like the unpitted olives you see at the grocery store. The fruit is small (1/4 to 3/8 inch in diameter) and is edible. Birds will feed on it during the winter when other food is not available. The seeds run through their systems and are dispersed to germinate where it is not wanted.

ERADICATION: Early growth can be dug out with a shovel or a Weed-Wrench. Larger olive plants require cutting and sometimes herbicide application.

OTHER COMMENTS: The leaves and the alternate branches may be mistaken for willows. The bark of mature trees or shrubs is a gray color. Young shrubs have smooth bark that becomes more fibrous with maturity. Similar to stiltgrass, autumn olive plants reproduce by seeds that may lay dormant for years. However, they can also spread by sucker growth from shallow roots. Autumn olive tends to take over areas with dense thickets of shrub growth.

INVASIVE ORIGIN: Autumn olive as well as the very similar Russian olive (Elaeagnus angustifolia), were introduced in this country to grow in areas with poor or no top soil, mainly for erosion prevention. The roots have nitrogen nodules much like soybeans, allowing it to thrive in poor nutrient soils.

Pictured above, the flowers which appear on the Autumn Olive in spring; and below, the fruit which appears in summer to fall.

Education

From the Superintendent Jason Kornegay

As I am writing this article, the Lebanon Township School District is in the process of finalizing the budget for the 2014-2015 school year. The Board of Education and the staff of the district have worked hard to develop a budget that will allow us to move forward with our important work while being sensitive to the fiscal realities of our community. For the past several years, we have been able to reduce the tax levy yet still maintain quality programs for our children. We have, however, reached a point where we need to slightly increase the tax levy in order to cover the ever-rising costs associated with running the district. The Board of Education is proposing a modest 1.25% increase in the tax levy. This increase translates to an annual tax increase of only $47 on the average home in the township. This small increase will not only allow us to maintain the quality programs that we have in place, but will allow us to increase services to our students in the area of technology education. This budget also includes two significant capital projects. The first of these projects is a much needed boiler replacement at Woodglen School. One of the two existing boilers has outlived its useful life and needs to be replaced. The second of the major capital projects is the repair/replacement of the bridge at the entrance to Valley View School. As many of you are aware, we have had to make some initial emergency repairs to the bridge and are awaiting the final scope of the full repair job. We anticipate that both of these projects will be completed in plenty of time for the opening of school in late August.

Perhaps the most important focus on the budget planning and development process, has been a renewed commitment to examine existing practices in all areas in an effort to seek greater efficiency. As it is with most municipal and household budgets, we are working hard to do more with our existing resources. We will be carefully examining all of our internal procedures to make sure we can sustain positive growth for our students in the next year and many years into the future. Our greatest resource has always been the people of the schools and the greater community. We sincerely appreciate all of the support we receive on a daily basis.

In closing, I want to personally thank you for allowing me to be a part of this community. I would encourage you to contact me at any time with questions about the budget, our schools and any other area with which I may be of assistance. Have a wonderful spring and summer.

Looking for Host Families for International Exchange Students

If your family is open to new and enriching experiences and willing to provide guidance, love and support to a young person embarking on a journey of self-discovery, then hosting an international exchange student may be the perfect opportunity for you.

Youth for Understanding (YFU) USA, a nonprofit intercultural exchange organization, is seeking host families to mentor and host high school exchange students. One of the world's oldest and largest exchange organizations, YFU has provided study abroad opportunities to over 250,000 high school students for more than 60 years.

Hosting a YFU exchange student is a life-changing experience, not only for the student, but for your entire family. By opening your home and heart to an overseas student, your family will gain a new global perspective, many memories and, quite possibly, a new family member for life.

Host families have many different faces and backgrounds. It doesn't matter if you have children or not, whether you're married, single, or an empty nester; anyone can be a host family.

For additional information, visit www.yfuusa.org/host-a-student.php or call us at (617) 868-3660 ext 1130.
