Tracks Through Time: The Delaware-Lackawanna Railroad "Then & Now"

Join local historian, Mike Helbing, for a captivating lecture on the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad, the first line to cross Warren County and ignite the anthracite coal industry in Pennsylvania. Through a unique "then and now" photo comparison, Mike will transport you back in time, showing what these iconic locations looked like in the past, alongside how they appear today. This journey along the railroad's historic route was the spark for Mike's Metrotrails initiative, a group dedicated to hiking, promoting, and preserving the rich history and ecology of the NY/NJ/Philly region. Don't miss this opportunity to discover the legacy of a railroad that shaped the landscape and industry of the Northeast.

Saturday, March 22nd 11:15AM
Lebanon Township Museum